

Medical Revision Course

Do you dream of a career in medicine or dentistry?

In order to enter this competitive but rewarding career a great deal of study is required in addition to a great deal of academic support, especially to fully prepare to sit a university examination to study medicine or dentistry.

Abbey College in Malvern, UK, in coordination with Qadri International, recognise this need for academic support and can offer potential students the unique opportunity to consolidate their learning and prepare to sit an entrance exam with our online medical revision course.

Our experience has shown that students are twice as likely to pass the EU HE entrance exams if they first take a revision course.

Traditionally, medical university entrance examinations cover topics included in the British 'A' Level syllabus however not all the content is covered, hence the need for this revision course as it covers all the pertinent areas usually covered by university entrance examinations.

As with all exams, familiarity increases the chances of success. The online course will prepare students for the idiosyncrasies of these entrance exams and provide useful techniques for approaching the different style of questions.

Any revision course is no substitute for an existing strong academic background in the areas being examined. Hence we usually require that candidates have strong 'A' Level results or their equivalent, in science subjects, many applicants will already have a first degree in a science related subject.

The course will highlight areas likely to be examined, recap some areas where the majority of students seem to struggle and work through past papers.

Although the current view of students and parents is to study maths, for some universities there is a greater requirement for chemistry and biology. However, physics can also give students a grounding in the basics required for the exam.
